Rapid Insight has developed a Data Integration technology which makes it easy for Institutional Research Professionals to work with their data. Data can be integrated and aggregated from multiple disparate sources, and reporting processes can be streamlined and automated. The creation of visual 'data jobs' can be used to track information from its point of extraction, all the way through to final reports and analytic datasets. In this session we'll explore this Data Integration Technology and how it's currently being used by Institutional Research Professionals.
